Ms. Heim

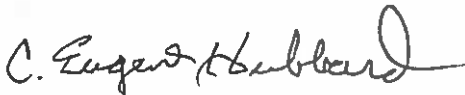

The Arlington View Civic Association recommends that the name for the propose GW Carver mini-park be "George Washington Carver Park".

This suggestion is to honor the memory and works of George Washington Carver, one of the most prominent scientists and inventors of his time, as well as a teacher at the Tuskegee Institute. He devised over 100 products using one of these crops—the peanut—including dyes, plastics and gasoline.

Also, the AVCA membership voted for this name to let future generations know that this area was the first African-American group who paid the federal government in full and became owners of the cooperative, George Washington Carver Mutual Homes Association.
